McKENZIE (July 19) — Following multiple workshops and discussions the McKenzie City Council has agreed to pursue an investment grade audit (IGA) with Trane Building Advantage. During a special called meeting, the council wants to go to the next step towards replacing current streetlights with LED lights, along with implementing automatic water reading (AMR) and facility efficiency projects.

Councilman Jason Martin made the motion to move forward with the audit followed by a second from Councilman Randy Callahan. The council unanimously voted in favor for the audit.

The council's vote authorized Mayor Jill Holland to sign a letter of commitment. The letter allows Trane to execute

Bethel Bass Wins National Championship

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. — Garrett Enders and Cody Huff of Bethel University were in the lead wire to wire to win the 2018 Bassmaster College Series National Championship this weekend, with a three-day total of 41 pounds, 6 inches. Their coaches are Garry Mason and Kenny Louden of Springville.

Enders is from Pennsylvania and Huff is from Missouri.

Enders and Huff were the only anglers to limit both of the first two days, and they did it quickly each morning, and without error.

"We hadn't lost a fish all week; we lost four keepers today," Huff said. "I guess you have to pay your dues." Saturday they also sacrificed 14 flutter spoons to the docks of Tenkiller.

The first fish lost offered an indication of the lackluster luck factor ahead as it snagged a dockside obstacle. "He jumped up and actually got my jigging spoon's hook caught on a rope holding a minnow bucket," Huff said. "He was just hanging there and all we could do was watch him get off."

All of their fish came on either a 5 1/2-inch Strike King Sexy Spoon or a 7/8-ounce Jewel Jigging Spoon as they targeted sunken cedars around docks with most

Tate Honored by City, Industrial Board

McKENZIE (July 19) — Frank Tate, former executive director of the McKenzie Industrial Board, was honored by the City of McKenzie and the McKenzie Industrial Board for his leadership during his 15 months of service as the head of McKenzie economic development effort.

Mayor Jill Holland and Gary Simmons, chairman of the McKenzie Industrial Board, presented a joint resolution from the two entities to honor Tate, who accepted a similar position at the metro area of Clarksville, with multi-million dollar projects and significant staff support.

McKenzie Mayor Jill Holland reads a proclamation honoring Frank Tate for his leadership in economic development. Tate recently accepted a similar position in the metro area of Clarksville/Montgomery County.

Under Tate's leadership, and the assistance of Monica Heath, executive assistant, McKenzie expanded its efforts to add a more holistic emphasis on economic development, including tourism, industrial development, and livability. During his tenure, the city landed one industry, and worked on many more prospects – including nine prospect visits, changed its website to growmckenzie.com, secured a tourism grant to remodel one-half of the historic depot, a marketing grant to design the new website and other marketing materials and other services, and helped secure Carroll County as a foreign trade zone, which should complete certification in the next few weeks. He hosted a meeting of the West Tennessee Chamber Directors, which he joined as the lone representative from Carroll County. During his tenure, Republic Builders/Allegion also expanded its workforce. The Industrial Board held two job fairs during the year to help match employers with possible employees.

The city and industrial board developed a strategic economic development plan under his leadership. That, along with the industrial board's involvement in retail development, led to the donation of 67 acres of land along State Route 22 across from McKenzie High School.

McKenzie Industrial Board hosted a TVA Economic Development 101 seminar last week and a forum for the candidates for countywide election earlier this year.

Former Henry County Standout, Future Bethel Wildcat Dies After Auto Accident

COURTESY BETHEL SID

PARIS — Eighteen year-old J. C. "Jay" Kennedy, a graduate of Henry County High School and incoming freshman football player at Bethel University died Tuesday afternoon, July 17, after a one vehicle accident on Highway 79. The wreck occurred around 12:45 p.m. about five miles southwest of Paris.

The 6'5 270 offensive lineman participated Tuesday morning in a newcomer camp at Bethel. He left campus after lunch and was driving toward Paris.

Bethel Coach Brent Dearmon said, "Our staff and players are deeply saddened by this tragic loss. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the Kennedy family."

Jay's funeral was Saturday, July 21, at 11 a.m. at TVCC in Paris with Ridgeway Funeral Home in charge.

The family has asked that in lieu of flowers donations should be made to Ridgeway Funeral Home.

Animal Cruelty Bond Hearing Set for August 6

CARROLL COUNTY — Tara Neutzler and Donald Schoenthal made an appearance in Carroll County Circuit Court facing charges of 300 counts each of animal cruelty.

Carroll County Sheriff's Department and Animal Rescue Corps of Washington, D.C. raided their Atwood home and seize the animals in various stages of dying, as Animal Rescue Corps said. Both are charged individually with the crime and both are represented by attorney D.J. Norton.

ARC has filed a motion to receive money to care for the animals. Daily expenses are approximately $2,500.

The court reset the bond hearing for August 6.

Approximately 43 large and medium breed dogs, including puppies, 37 cats, including litters of newborn kittens, 17 rabbits, 10 geese, eight chickens, six ducks, six goats, five sheep, five chinchillas, four ferrets, and two alpacas were found without adequate food or water.

Several dead animals were found around the property including a zebra, a cat, a duck, and the remains of rabbits. There were live animals and dead animals in the same cage.

Animals were found running loose and in cages around the property, inside a barn, and in the property owner's house and garage.

The animals were all extremely dirty and suffering from heavy infestations of internal and external parasites, broken bones, extreme matting, eye and ear infections, and respiratory issues caused by the extremely high ammonia levels inside the house and garage which was among the highest ARC has ever recorded, according to a news release from ARC.

Many of the animals were suffering from malnutrition and no food for the animals was found on the property.

Henry County Taxes Remain Unchanged

BY SHANNON MCFARLIN
WENK/WTPR News

PARIS — The Henry County commissioners approved on first reading the 2018-2019 budget which will maintain the current property tax rate of $2.09. Second and final reading of the budget will be held at a meeting Monday, July 30.

County Mayor Brent Greer presented a summary of the budget, noting, "This is a good budget. We have no increase in our property tax rate. There are revenue challengers ahead, but those have been taken into consideration in this budget."

The county general fund's estimated fund balance on the new budget is $2.63M, which is less than the current fund balance of $2.85M. The general purpose school fund balance is identical at $6.47M. Greer said, "I'm glad we can spend the money we can for education in Henry County so we can be competitive in our area." He thanked County Director of Schools Dr. Brian Norton for completing the bus garage "with your own reserves."

The highway fund estimated fund balance for the new budget is $1.41M, which is less than the current budget of $1.89M; debt service fund is $1.865M, up slightly from this year's at $1.83M; and the solid waste fund estimated fund balance is at $518,163, less than the current year of $541,666.

Greer noted, "This is a well put together budget and thanked County Budget Director Patricia Hollingsworth and commissioners.

Commissioners also approved first reading on the list of 22 county non-profit organizations. Total of funding for the organizations is $95,685. Second reading will also be held July 30.

Tosh Farms Issues Statement on Video in Kentucky Operation

HENRY — Tosh Farms in Henry has issued a statement in response to a video that was released by Mercy For Animals which shows undercover footage of brutal treatment of pigs and piglets at the Tosh Farms facility in Kentucky.

Mercy For Animals says it conducted an undercover investigation at a Franklin, Kentucky facility owned by the Tennessee-based pig farm.

Louisville's JBS Swift pork processing plant has suspended pig shipments from the Kentucky farm after Mercy for Animals released the video Monday that allegedly shows pigs being mistreated.

Here is the Tosh Pork press release in its entirety:

"Tosh Pork Release – Several actions were identified today that were outside of our written company policy and on-farm training. Immediate intervention has occurred this morning via a third-party veterinarian who specializes in animal care training.

During the complete examination of all animals on-site today, the veterinarian observed no on-going animal care issues. In response to advice from this audit, we are immediately –

1. Addressing animal care and handling issues via re-training of our staff.

2. Implementing short and long-term plans to ensure animal welfare policy re-training and compliance.

Tosh Pork takes seriously our ethical responsibility for the proper care of pigs. As a U.S. pork producer, we are committed to producing safe, wholesome pork in a socially responsible way, and no one cares more than our family about taking care of our animals, natural resources, and contributing to local communities.

Our goal is to always find ways to improve our practices and provide the best possible care for our animals."

and to be unified in that effort. She specified elected officials, school officials, power company officials, and owners of existing businesses and industries.

Trends in community economic development can be affected by elections, foreign investment, incentives, access and logistics to the geographic area, the reliability of utilities, and local sustainability.

Prospects look at the today's available workforce and whether or not the workforce will be available in the outlying years. Livability, tourism and retail, and how the community supports entrepreneurship and small businesses are also factors.

When a company is attempting to fill a need for expansion or relocation it goes through a process of: request for information, a community visit, negotiations, announcement, groundbreaking, and aftercare. A community must be ready to respond promptly with information. Miss Shirley said if a community cannot meet the deadlines on requests for information, that community is quickly eliminated from the list.

Location and the availability of skilled labor are also key factors. The prospective employer wants to be close to major markets, have the available skilled labor force, be close to a major airport, and have available land and buildings.

Certified industrial sites are important. That indicates all the zoning, land ownership, and available utilities are ready. McKenzie has the lone certified industrial site in the county.

The industry is also looking for committed leadership, a consensus in the future of the community, a good workforce pipeline and the necessary infrastructure.

If the county leadership does not have the committed leadership and willingness to work together, the prospect can sense the tension and will walk away from the project. You are stronger together, said Shirley.

Many prospects demand confidentiality. Any breach of that confidentiality can derail the process. Prospects also establish Google Alerts for information on the community. Any negative discussions or release of confidential information will eliminate the community from prospects.

Attending were: Danny Brawner, manager of Carroll County Electric, John Mann, chairman of Carroll County Electric Board; Terry Howell, member of the Carroll County Electric Board; Mayor Jill Holland; Councilman Jason Martin; Bobby Young, candidate for councilman; Brian Winston, candidate for county commission; Joel Washburn, county commissioner and member of McKenzie Industrial Board; Matt Merrick, Gary Simmons, Dennis R. Coleman, and Randy Webb of the McKenzie Industrial Board; Brock Martin and Braden Maddox of the Huntingdon Industrial Board; Krista Martin and Cayce Maddox of Huntingdon,; Sandi Roditis, candidate for Property Assessor; Sarah Bradberry, candidate for Circuit Court Clerk; Bertha Taylor, Circuit Court Clerk; Paula Bolen, County Clerk; Joseph Butler, candidate for county mayor; Natalie Porter, Register of Deeds; Stacie McCaleb, representing Mayor Kenny McBride; LaRenda Scarbrough, real estate broker; Jennifer Waldrup, city recorder; Frank Tate, former executive director of the McKenzie Industrial Board; and Monica Heath, executive secretary of the McKenzie Industrial Board.

hits happening between 15 and 20 feet.

"Most everything hit it on the way down," Huff said. "You drop it and when it gets to 20 then you just work it back up."

One of the good fish missed Saturday followed the spoon nearly up to the boat, however. "He nailed it and dove but he came off," he said.

In addition to taking the championship title, Enders and Huff join the Campbellsville and West Virginia teams, along with Auburn University as the Top 4 head to the 2018 College Bracket, set for Aug. 14-16 on Milford Lake out of Junction City, Kan.

A berth in the 2019 Bassmaster Classic presented by DICK'S Sporting Goods, set for March 15-17 on the Tennessee River hosted at Knoxville, will be on the line for the eight anglers there, who will face off in the bracket-style, catch-and-release contest.

the audit. The cost of the IGA is $49,885. If Trane does not develop a viable project during the IGA process, then the city will not pay for the audit. In the event Trane does develop a viable project, the city will pay Trane for the audit and the cost will be included in the overall project and paid for within the saving guarantees. If a viable project is developed and the city decides not to contract with Trane, then the city will be required to reimburse Trane for the cost of the audit.

An IGA would take approximately 90 days. The audit includes, Trane and other technical personnel to perform an in-depth study of McKenzie's facilities, street lights and water metering system to identify opportunities, areas of concern and cost saving potential. Upon completion of the audit, Trane will provide the city a final proposal for a guaranteed energy utility saving performance contract. With the completion of the review and acceptance by the city of the audit, Trane will develop strategies with a detailed scope of work.

The preliminary project cost is estimated at $4,908,227 over a 20-year bonded period. Trane estimates a guaranteed saving of $6,017,209.

With a guaranteed savings, Trane will pay the City of McKenzie a specified amount, if for some reason, the yearly savings does not match the anticipated amount. The use of guaranteed savings will be applied to the maintenance and operations budget (utility dollars) as capital to make needed upgrades and modernizations to municipal building environmental systems.

The city governments of Paris and Rockwood along with Knox County and Robertson County have used Trane to implement the changes. The county school districts of Weakley, Haywood, Knox, Maury and Coffee have also moved towards Trane's energy efficient program.

The efficiency program does not replace the normal annual or capital budget. It is to provide a third (supplemental) funding stream by using guaranteed future energy and operational savings as a source of funding.

Through the preliminary study, the annual program cost is $226,893 per year for 20 years. This purchases existing streetlights from Carroll County Electric, upgrades approximately 1,400 streetlights to LED fixtures, implements of AMR for commercial and residential water meters, and upgrades HVAC and lighting in city own buildings. Trane guarantees $270,079 each year in savings.

Question?

A black man was elected by a majority of Americans to serve as the President of the United States for eight years and live in the White House. On March 16, 2016 this president nominated Merrick Garland to the Supreme Court. That was about 230 days before the next election. Merrick Garland was not allowed to have a confirmation hearing in the United States Senate.

Now a white man was elected to serve as the President of the United States. He did not receive a majority of the popular vote. On July 9, 2018 this president nominated Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court. This is about 120 days before the next election. Will the members of the Senate now refuse to give Brett Kavanaugh a confirmation hearing just as they did for Merrick Garland?

Correction

An article in last week's Banner titled "Kids Get Creative at the Annual Carroll Arts Camp" inadvertently referred to the Carroll Arts Creativity Camp as a "free event." While most Carroll Arts events are free, participation in the creativity camp requires a nominal fee. Donations to Carroll Arts, including the "significant donation" mentioned in the article, help to keep the fee low while enhancing the experience for the young campers. The Banner regrets the error.

Back to School in McKenzie

McKenzie Special School District will begin a new school year on Wednesday, August 1. The first day will begin at 8 a.m. and dismiss at 11:15 a.m. On Thursday, August 2, we will begin our regular 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. schedule.

We have employed 15 new teachers, five of which are MHS graduates, a food service director, a middle school secretary and two educational assistants.

Greg Jones has joined central office staff as food service director.

Chase Barton and April Stepp will teach first grade. Kelsey Brown, Lee Ann Coleman, Cari Moore and Rachel Newman are new second grade teachers. The elementary special education department welcomes Brandy Baumgardner, Dusty Emerson and Kimberly Sharp. Melodie Marr is returning to MES as an educational assistant.

At the middle school, Angela Winstead will teach fifth grade ELA. Audra Atkins will teach seventh grade ELA. Rachel Johns is returning to teach eighth grade math. New special education teachers are Karlene Cheatham and Jessica Hochreiter. Karen Moore will be the middle school secretary, and Michael Pershell will be an educational assistant.

At the high school, Misty Logan will teach math.

We have some familiar faces in new places.

Anna Trull will teach first grade. Josie Brown, Hannah Haywood and Mary Spivey will move to third grade. Amanda Tucker will be an elementary special education assistant.

At the middle school, Beth Mathis moves to seventh grade math and Joseph Baumgartel changes to eighth grade science.

Traci Lunn will make the move from MMS to teach high school English. BJ Hardwick will be our new art teacher. Jennifer Travis is the new high school secretary.

I want to share some updates related to state-mandated assessments. All high school end-of-course tests will continue to be online. There will no longer be an exam for Chemistry and English III. We are transitioning to a new set of science standards. For this year, all science tests will be field tests. Grades 5-8 will take their science tests online. Grades 3 and 4 will take their science tests on paper. All other subjects in grades 3-8 (math, ELA, and social studies) will take paper-pencil tests.

The two most notable pieces of new legislation will relate to our national motto and student attendance. Public Chapter 640 requires us to display our national motto "In God We Trust" in a prominent location in each school. The law defines a prominent location as an entry, cafeteria or commons area. Last year chronic absenteeism became part of our accountability model. PC 958 mandates progressive truancy intervention. In short, our lawmakers want parents held accountable for their child's poor attendance. The best way for your child to have a successful school experience is to attend daily. Please encourage and support them.

The start of a new school year is always an exciting time. As the band begins camp and the football team starts practicing, I feel something new and promising is near. I look forward to our students entering each building. We are blessed with a great faculty and staff.

I want our parents and community to know that McKenzie Special School District will continue to provide an excellent opportunity for the young people in our care.

Looking forward to the first day,

Lynn Watkins
Director of Schools

Tri-Counties Receive ThreeStar Grants

NASHVILLE — The counties of Carroll, Henry and Weakley received ThreeStar grants from the Department of Economic and Community Development. The three were among 60 counties receiving grants.

Carroll received $25,000, Henry received $5,000, and Weakley received$15,000.

The grants will be used for a variety of local programs addressing economic development, education and workforce development, public safety, health and efficient government.

"Providing more opportunities for Tennesseans is one of our state's main objectives, and with the assistance of the ThreeStar Competitive Grants, the 60 recipients will be better prepared for success," Haslam said. "The ThreeStar program is a great asset to help communities across Tennessee thrive, and I look forward to seeing each of these 60 communities continue to succeed."

"I want to congratulate the 60 communities chosen in this round to receive the ThreeStar Grants," Rolfe said. "The projects that these counties complete with ThreeStar grant assistance will enhance local communities by creating a better living and working environment for residents."

ThreeStar focuses on best practices in five key community areas, including jobs and economic development, education and workforce development, fiscal strength and efficient government, public safety and health. To be eligible for this grant, the county must meet requirements in these five areas and show how the project will move the county forward in at least one of those areas.

"TNECD is able to assist the 60 recipients of the ThreeStar Grants by investing in locally-driven projects that transform communities," Amy New, assistant commissioner of Community and Rural Development, said. "We are proud to partner with these communities as they continue to work collaboratively to enhance their economic landscape."

A total of $955,000 was awarded to Tennessee communities.

Do You Know How to Can Food? We Can Help

Now is the time to start planning and preparing if you want to preserve food this summer. Proper equipment is needed for safe, high-quality, home-canned food.

There are two types of canning systems to consider: boiling water canners and pressure canners. Boiling water canners are used for canning acid or acidified foods. These would include most fruits, most pickles, jams and jellies. Boiling water canners can cost anywhere between $30 to $100, or can be assembled yourself with a large stock pot, secure lid and a rack to keep jars off the bottom of the pot.

Foods that are low in acid, such as vegetables, meats, fish and poultry, should be canned in a pressure canner. These foods require high temperatures, 240 degrees Fahrenheit and above, to be sure toxin-producing spores of the bacteria Clostridium botulinum are killed. If not killed, these spores can grow and produce a deadly toxin when the jars cool and are stored at room temperature. Water-bath canners reach to 212 degrees Fahrenheit, which is not hot enough to kill the spores. You can expect to spend between $100 and $150 or more on a pressure canner.

You'll also need jars and lids for canning. New jars are a worthwhile investment (versus purchasing used jars from a yard sale or flea market) because very old jars may break under pressure and heat. Extension recommends Mason-type jars of standard sizes (e.g., half-pint, pint and quart). Make sure those jars are manufactured and sold for canning purposes; not all glass and Mason-style jars are tempered to prevent breakage with the extreme heat and temperature changes during canning. Two-piece canning lids with flat lids and ring bands are recommended. Never reuse flat lids, but you can reuse ring bands provided they are not rusted or bent. Follow manufacturers' advice for preparing your jars and lids.

It is not too early to begin gathering your other equipment and supplies for canning. A jar funnel for filling jars, a magnetic wand to handle flat lids and a plastic debubbler (or rubber spatula) are useful utensils and can be found where canning supplies are sold.

Finally, reliable, up-to-date canning and other food preservation instructions are "must haves" among your supplies. Reliable, up-to-date canning instructions are available from your local Extension agent or online from the National Center for Home Food Preservation (http://nchfp.uga.edu/).

Be on the lookout for Canning Classes that will be offered in Carroll County soon.

Why Your Child, Teenager Should Get a Well-Child Checkup Today?

Most children do not like going to the doctor's office, which is understandable as typically they go to the doctor because they are sick or not feeling well. Yet, did you know your child should be seeing the doctor even when they are not sick? Even your teenager needs to be seen. The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends your child gets a well-child checkup every year until he or she is 21.

McKenzie Medical Center (MMC) understands taking your child or teen to the doctor is not as easy. As mentioned above, most children do not like to go to the doctor. As a parent, you have to take off work. There is the risk of exposure for your healthy child.

However, the benefits of a well-child checkup for your child or teen greatly outweigh any risks. A well-child checkup is a good time for parents to raise questions and concerns about a child's development, behavior, immunization needs, nutrition, safety and overall well-being.

Holly Arnold, a physician assistant at MMC's Pediatrics Department, with over 10 years of experience notes, "Being a parent is not easy. No one has all the answers, in regards to the best care for your child or teen, but with a well-child checkup we take time to help you as a parent make the best choices for your child."

Don't be afraid to ask questions, medical or otherwise. Your child's provider can give valuable advice on how to promote your child's learning and development, how to potty train, tips on playground safety and answer questions you may have about immunizations for your teen including: HPV, TDAP and meningitis vaccines.

Well-child checkups allow you to track the growth and development of your child and make sure your child is on track. By doing a well-child checkup yearly you can make sure any issues are identified and addressed early.

An MMC patient has first-hand experience on the benefits of well-child checkups, "It was at one of my grandson's infant well exams that Holly noticed there were some problems with his growth and development. We knew he was small, but so is his mother so we didn't think anything about it. Holly was vigilant about checking his measurements when he was in and when they weren't measuring how she thought they should, she made the appropriate referrals. After several specialist visits and tests, we have finally gotten a diagnosis and can proceed with all the proper therapies. I'm not sure we would have gotten this diagnosis so early and therefore been able to start the appropriate therapies for him if it weren't for his wellness checkup."

Dr. Williams, a pediatrician at MMC with 8 years of experience commented, "At MMC we believe these well-child checkups are essential for helping your child and teen progress into adulthood. They are a key part of preventative care: helping prevent future disease or injury or catching health problems before they become serious."

Regular well-child checkups create a team approach for your child's health care that helps develop optimal physical, mental and social health of a child. AAP recommends well-child checkups as a way for medical providers and parents to best serve the needs of children and teenagers.

Holly concluded, "With school starting soon, there will be a rush for parents to get their child seen to meet the school requirements. July is a great time to come in for a well-child checkup, before the busy season. That way you can make sure all is well with your child's health and that they are ready for the new school year."

If you have questions or would like to schedule your child's well-child checkup today contact McKenzie Medical Center at 731-352-7907 or visit our website at www.mckenziemedicalcenter.com.

Rotary Tours Historic Webb School Museum

BY JOEL WASHBURN
washburn@mckenziebanner.com

Alumni members of Webb School, the lone all-African-American high school in Carroll County, were honored to host McKenzie Rotary Club on Tuesday, July 17 at the former school on Walnut Avenue in McKenzie.

Alumni members and their families who gave a warm greeting to the club were: Ike Gilbert, Neal Williamson, Virgie Thomas, Mary Luter, Jordan, and John Nolen. They told about their school from their personal memories and through the many exhibits contained in the on-site museum. Thomas nor Jordan attended Webb, but they eagerly told of the school, its students and teachers, and its history.

Webb School is emblematic of a segregated south, in which the blacks had separate schools from the whites, separate public restrooms and water fountains, and a separate seating area at the Park Theatre.

Dr. Carroll Van West, the state historian, worked with a local committee to develop the museum, a website telling the history of Webb School, and to create a driving tour of historic American-American schools in West Tennessee.

Marty Marby, West Tennessee Tourism Director, attended as a guest of the McKenzie Rotary Club.

Webb School began serving 22 communities as the Carroll County Training School. John L. Webb provided the funds needed for the expansion as the student population grew. The McKenzie campus was the lone high school in Carroll County for African American students until desegregation in 1965. Webb School has a rich history. In 1936, a fire destroyed a number of the school's buildings. In need of a replacement campus, the board purchased the abandoned McTyeire College campus. New buildings came in the 1950s and operated until the school closed. It was one of the newest school buildings in the county, yet set idle for several years until the ambitious efforts of the Webb Alumni Association purchased the building from the county of Carroll.

It has been used for Northwest Tennessee Head Start classrooms and administrative offices, and a daycare through the years.

It also is a point of pride each September as members of the Alumni Association gather in their former school for the annual reunion.

Webb School was one of the famous Rosenwald schools. At one time, the school had a dormitory to house a number of the students and a few of the teachers.

Friday, September 2, 2016, the museum opened for public inspection. It is located inside the former high school and features photographs, old desks, books, and other historical documents.

Rotary members saw old photos, sewing machines, grade books, and a recently discovered granite stone that was the marker for the girls' dormitory. It was unearthened recently when the school when the building encountered some problems with its underground utilities. The marker read" Girls Dormitory, Erected 1930, Colored Citizens, Julius Rosenwald, County Board.

Ultramarathon Runners Seek Refuge at McKenzie Oasis

BY BRAD SAM
brad@mckenziebanner.com
Copyright 2018 - Tri-County Pub.

McKENZIE (July 12-23) — The middle of July has once again come and gone, and along with it over a hundred gluttons for punishment: runners in the Last Annual Vol State Road Race, a 314-mile ultramarathon with a route that passes through downtown McKenzie as it crosses Tennessee.

The torturous 500-kilometer trek begins in the early hours of Thursday in Dorena Landing, Missouri, and ends in Castle Rock, Georgia, winding through Tennessee by highway and country road.

Runners have a maximum of ten days to complete the journey. They compete in two classes, crewed and uncrewed, or "screwed." Crewed runners have a team that provides aid during the race, and the rest are at the mercy of the road and anyone they meet along the way.

For three years now, the McKenzie Farmers Market has served as an aid station for weary runners. Located near the 56-mile mark of the race, the station is an oasis that racers have come to count on for the many needs that arise on such a grueling slog.

Volunteers provide food, drink, basic hygiene and first aid supplies, air conditioning, a sleeping mat, a restroom, company, emotional support and, to the best of the their ability, anything else a runner needs. Race participants lovingly refer to such providers as "road angels."

McKenzie's perennial road angels include Al Everett; Ray, Stephanie, Mahki and Alyxzander Watkins; and Steve, Melanie, Zakk and Cheyenne Burke, with help from a handful of other individuals over the course of the two-day period when runners pass through.

The first runner arriving in McKenzie was no surprise. At 5:50 p.m. Thursday, Greg Armstrong jogged through downtown. Armstrong is a three-time "King of the Road" and the course record holder. He stopped at Maria's Mexican Restaurant for a break and a snack, visiting with Everett, the Watkinses and Karen Phelps and giving an interview to The Banner.

After setting the course record two years ago (three days, seven hours, nine minutes and 49 seconds), he declined to race last year, instead serving as a crew member for another runner. His previous finishes had all been crewed, so he raised his personal stakes this year by running screwed and clearly had his sights set on the screwed record (three days, 23 hours, 15 minutes and 52 seconds set by Johan Steene in 2015).

For Armstrong, the Vol State is just part of a larger goal, to qualify for the United States Ultra Team, which competes in the 24-hour run format. He was on the team in 2015 but missed the cut in 2017. Gunning for the 2019 World Championships to be held in Austria in May, Armstrong is currently ranked fifth in the nation; the top six runners qualify for Worlds.

The determined Armstrong noted before departing that "A lot can go wrong between here and the rock," and the notion proved to be prophetic. He would drop out of the race for unknown reasons after one day and seven hours, making it just beyond the Tennessee River.

Next to arrive in McKenzie on Thursday weren't runners, but the race organizers. Missing from the usual crew was the race's infamous creator, Gary "Laz" Cantrell. Laz was (and still is) in the midst of his own remarkable journey, crossing the country on foot from Newport, Rhode Island, to Newport, Oregon.

Taking charge of the Vol State in the absence of Laz and dining at Maria's with the local fans were Carl Laniak and Sandra (wife of Laz) Cantrell. Laniak is a veteran of the race, earning the coveted "King of the Road" title in 2007. He's assisted Laz with the race for several years, making him a prime candidate to run the show in his stead.

Laniak told The Banner that the lead-up to the race "kind of wore him out" but that "it's the opposite for the runners." He said, "The race kind of takes care of itself. It's not a hand-holding event. Once you're off the ferry, you're on your own."

By 11 p.m. that night, only seven runners had made it as far as the Farmers Market, but, over the next several hours, dozens more trotted through. Many stopped to take advantage of the aid station, but most were eager to get back on the road to take advantage of the night's cool.

The usual rush came during the first half of Friday.

One notable runner spoke to The Banner before hitting the road around noon. Sergio Bianchini, 77, an Italian native who now calls Chattanooga home, had run and finished the Vol State three times. This year he would finish in seven days, 18 hours, 55 minutes and ten seconds, about a day slower that his personal best from last year. More importantly, he became the oldest to ever complete the race.

Bianchini has lived in the States for 40 years, but only started running at age 60. He began with a 5K, but soon joined the Chattanooga Track Club to ramp up the hobby. He said of Vol State, "I enjoy it. There are a lot of regulars. It's a kind of reunion for folks. And it's a time to get your thoughts, a spiritual journey." A veteran paratrooper in Italy, after emigrating he would be a hotel manager and then an entrepreneur.

Runners continued to trickle through McKenzie well into Friday evening. When all was said and done, 80 of the 114 who began the race reached the pinnacle at Castle Rock. 49 rookies were among the finishers, as were two who were trying again after coming up short previously.

Crewed runner and rookie Grant Maughan is the "King of the Road" with a time of three days, 22 hours, two minutes and 59 seconds, the sixth fastest in Vol State history.

Recording Made Possible by Late Dr. Winkler

BY BRAD SAM

Copyright 2018 - Tri-County Pub.

A long journey took a huge turn for singer-songwriter and lifelong McKenzie resident Derek Fields two years ago when he was asked to play at a gathering at the home of Dr. Volker Winkler.

The local physician was so impressed with the musician that he offered to help him advance his career. Dr. Winkler would soon fulfill that offer by funding the studio time for Fields to record his debut album of original songs, Without Permission.

In an interview with The Banner, Fields said that it's hard to put a label on his music, but settles on Americana. Influenced heavily by artists such as The Band and John Prine, his songs are a mix of blues, country, rock and soul, with an emphasis on the latter.

He calls himself "a songwriter first," but spent many years only performing covers before finally dedicating all of his time to his original songs.

Prior to playing that fateful set at the Winkler gathering, Fields had won a songwriting contest at Bethel University, earning him the right to record one song in the school's studio. After that, he had begun saving money for more time.

With Winkler's contribution, Fields hit the studio immediately and began laying down the tracks that would become Without Permission.

He co-produced the album with John Buteyn, who also did the mixing and played bass, keyboards, saxophone, harp and tambourine. Other musicians included Joni Boyd (harmony vocals), D.J. Culp (percussion and drums), Sophia Chambers (violin and cello), Ken Nolen (drums), Aaron Holman (banjo), Jake Riggins (upright bass), Jeremiah Cole (upright bass), Christian Pipkin (B3) and Keith Herris (Rhodes piano). Besides the lead vocals, Fields also played the guitar. The album was mastered by Cameron J. Henry at the Nashville recording studio Welcome to 1979.

The title Without Permission is a nod to the fact that Fields didn't have to earn the approval of or submit to the whims of a record company.

He would regularly see Winkler, who would ask about the progress and told Fields, "I can't wait to hear it." Fields assured him, "I'll make sure you're the first to hear it."

It's a promise that became impossible for Fields to keep as Winkler died in February from injuries sustained while riding an elliptigo.

"It's a heartbreaking thing that he never got to hear it," Fields told The Banner. The recording was done, but the songs had yet to be mixed.

"I really want people to know what he did for me," he added. The album's liner notes include: "Without Permission is dedicated to the late Volker Winkler, who believed in me and my music enough to give me this opportunity."

Fields says that for now, music is still a hobby, but hopes that the album may help him build a fan base. "If I can get enough of a return on this, I can continue."

Without Permission is available now to stream or purchase at derekfields.hearnow.com and on all major streaming sites. Fields can be contacted at robinsonleveerecords@gmail.com.

The 41-year-old has worked at AT&T for 22 years. He and his wife, Lauren, have four children. Derek is the son of Jim Fields of McKenzie and Diane Conley of Trezevant.

TCAT-McKenzie Welders Make Improvements at Dresden High School

COURTESY TCAT-MCKENZIE

Three of TCAT-McKenzie's Dresden Welding students, along with their instructor, Jeremy Tucker, designed, crafted and installed a lockable storage area at Dresden High School.

Dresden High School had done some remodeling in the boys' locker room and had space that wasn't being utilized. They wanted to make the unused space a lockable storage space. Mr. Tucker, along with students Jason Gallimore, Dustin Jones and Chase Carden, were able to help. It took about a week to design, build and install the doors. They did a fantastic job, and DHS was pleased with the results.

TCAT-McKenzie sends a special thank you to AJ Salvage, who provided the materials, Mr. Randy Frazier, director of Weakley County Schools, and Wayne Reynolds, maintenance.

Parks and Recreation workers install one of the new player benches.

Benches Added to Recreational Field

Since 2009, several McKenzie community members and soccer enthusiasts, along with the Kiwanis service club, have prepared another sports complex area for practices and games. We now have a field designated for such sports as soccer, track and field, sprints, baseball and football. The field is used by city leagues and Bethel University.

Two player benches have been added to the barren sports field which is located near the walking path and the pond in the McKenzie Recreational Park. These are much needed benches for the local players and visiting teams. The additional funds from Kiwanis and this grant offers a huge support to our small community, which has limited resources.

With the additional funds from Kiwanis of McKenzie and La-Miss-W.Tenn. District Foundation, the two benches have been placed to honor the memory of John Barham, a charter Kiwanian, who was an avid sports fan and volunteer and a driving force helping to bring the soccer league to McKenzie.

The McKenzie Parks and Recreation Department placed the benches in concrete as a permanent fixture at the sports field.

PEOPLE

Carroll County Calling: A Book 40 Years in the Making

Toedy Duke Releases A Look at 49 Citizens of Carroll County, Beyond

CARROLL COUNTY — Lost for 40 years: What started a book to profile many people of Carroll County back in 1979 was put in a box and recently resurfaced as a history book. Margaret Toedy Holley-Gray-Duke found the document recently when she was going through her personal belongings. Once a resident of Carroll County/Huntingdon, Toedy said she and Judi Harris interviewed area residents and wrote the book. Dub Smith assisted, too. Peggy Ball and Janet Pierce edited the book, that details the lives of 49 area citizens along with 15 stories of cities, communities, places, and politics.

Toedy, the wife of the late pastor of Lighthouse Church in Huntingdon, initially decided to write about the people and make it a "now" book. However, she moved from the area and soon lost contact with the other authors. The book was stored away in her personal belongings and was only recently found. Her husband, Hale Duke, encouraged her to pursue her original dream of distributing the book. Now residing in Brentwood, California, the two have made a limited number of copies – one for the Gordon Browning Museum and Genealogical Library in McKenzie, McKenzie Memorial Library, and the Carroll County Library.

It lists places and things: small town blues, politics, Johnson Hotel, Coon Hunters Club, old county jail, Hollow Rock junction, Dollar Hill, Sulphur Springs, Pond Branch, Vale, farming interests and animal lover, and Bruceton.

For more information about the book, call Margaret Gray-Duke at 618-218-9115 or e-mail her at toedygray@yahoo.com.

Toedy Duke and husband, Hale Duke display the book "Carroll County Calling" she co-wrote in 1979. When she was moving, she discovered the book and decided to have it printed.

Darris Nash: Still Going Strong at 90

BY BRAD SAM
brad@mckenziebanner.com

McKENZIE (July 19) — Darris Nash was summoned to Premier Realty Thursday by owner/principal broker Susan Bradberry. Upon his arrival, she and her fellow office staff, Lauren Hyde and Laura Williams, surprised him with a cake for his 90th birthday.

The nonagenarian is as active as anyone half his age or younger. He currently cares for about a dozen lawns, including Bradberry's. As a nod to the wonderful job she says he does, the cake was iced to resemble a lawn and adorned with a fondant mower and weed-eater.

In between bites of the chocolate cake (his favorite), he spoke to The Banner and his friends at Premier about a life of blessings, hardships and hard work.

Born in Henry County just before the Great Depression, Nash went to work early and hasn't stopped. His first job was at the Holley Carburetor plant in Paris. He later spent about five years working construction in California, then returned to this area and worked mostly in construction. His last "real" job was at Republic Builders.

When not working, he's been an avid fiddle player, playing country music at clubs and square dances. He also loves to ride motorcycles.

He's been married to his wife, Annette, for 38 years. The blended family includes three children, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

During the winter months, he spends his time keeping house, handling the cooking and cleaning for Annette, who also still works.

He attributes his longevity to his work ethic, his lifelong fitness regimen and the fact that he never drank, smoked or used drugs.

He said, "If anybody's had a good life, it's me," his only complaint being that he doesn't want it to end anytime soon.

Bill Lee Campaigns in Carroll County

HUNTINGDON (July 20) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Lee made a stop in Huntingdon as part of his Town Hall tour on Friday evening.

Lee told of his life story, including the tragic death of his wife from injuries sustained a horse-riding accident. He said he was a widower, raising his children, and used the tragedy to re-examine his life. He started mentoring children and helped a parolee get his life on track.

He is the principal in the Lee Company, voted Tennessee's best company to work for. He said he has never run for public office but feels it's part of his mission in life to serve others.

Approximately 40 persons gathered in the banquet room at Mallard's Restaurant to meet and hear Bill Lee. He said his early 95-county campaign stops were accomplished in an RV, in which some stops had four or five persons. The number of attendees has grown and so has his polling numbers. Lee said the latest polls indicate he moved ahead of the Republican challengers. The Tennessee Journal indicates Lee has a six-point advantage over the nearest challenger.

Being governor is about executive leadership and that is something he has accomplished by growing his business of plumbers and electricians to over 1,200.

Tennessee has 15 counties rated as impoverished, all of those are rural. He said he is familiar with the lack of emphasis on economic development in West Tennessee and will work to support rural communities in their economic development.

Jesus Christ is the most important thing in my life, said Lee. He said his priorities are faith, family, and community.

He said the deceptive and dishonest attack ads is what is wrong with politics. "I am not going to do that. I don't think we need a leader willing to do that," said Lee.

In a question and answer session, Lee said he supports President Trump, who he said is effective and has implemented tax reform after 40 years of failures by other presidents.

He said the United States needs the border wall and conservative judges. Trump moved the American embassy to Jerusalem, something other presidents did not accomplish. Lee said he did not support sanctuary cities, which is absolute lawlessness. He also said the removal of Confederate monuments is an attempt to erase history. He supports school choice, including pilot and charter schools. Technical vocations should be introduced to students in the seventh and eighth grades. Teachers should be supported and the testing environment in Tennessee is not supportive of its teachers. He also said he supports agriculture enhancements and the Second Amendment.

WHEN EXPERIENCE COUNTS

1. Our office is using one of the latest software programs offered by the Administrative Office of the Courts. The TNCIS software is compatible with the State. This allows us to electronically send reports to the state instead of manually sending them. This allows for a faster response time from both the courts and state records.

2. In the General Sessions office last year, we processed 4,079 criminal warrants, 4,154 traffic citations, (as well as handled the dismissals after driving school), 944 Civil cases. In the Circuit Court we processed 312 criminal cases, 116 civil cases. Juvenile cases processed over 233 child support cases (this does not include criminal cases).

3. We have been taking credit card payments online and over the phone since October 2011. This has been a great asset to our office as well as to our clients paying fines and costs. Online payments in the General Sessions offices has collected $101,205.00 and Circuit Court has collected $19,491.00.

4. We have turned over $554,541 in fees to the County Trustee collected from fines and court costs.

5. We had NO AUDIT FINDINGS!! My office has worked very hard to meet this accomplishment.

6. My vision going forward: Starting a new feature for contacting juror members and implementing electronic minute books as a way to save space.

7. I plan to implement E-filing as soon as the Administrative Office of the Courts has this option put into place. We are already using the fax filing, that the AOC allows.

8. Each year the AOC offers grant money to upgrade security at the Courthouse. I have applied for the grants each time that it has been available. This past year I was awarded approximately $17,000 for security panic buttons for the Juvenile Court Office as well as security cameras for the outside doors of the Courthouse.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

See solution in next week's edition.
