Oak Manor Nursing Home Closes, At Least Temporarily

McKENZIE (July 10) — Oak Manor Nursing Home, a skilled care facility, located on Oak Manor Road, McKenzie closed last week after 50 years of operations.

One local family indicated one of their elderly family members was a patient at Oak Manor. Last Wednesday, the family was advised the facility was closing and the elderly patient was transferred the next day to Douglas Health and Rehabilitation in Milan, a facility under the same ownership. The family member called it an emergency move. Others patients had already been relocated to Douglas and other facilities, said the family member.

The family was happy with the care provided by Oak Manor. The family hopes Oak Manor can soon reopen. Oak Manor had great activities and did many recreational and educational events with the residents, said the family spokesperson.

The facility had sustained low patient numbers in recent years.

Carroll County Relay For Life-North, South Reunite

Carroll County Relay For Life north and south units joined forces for the first time in many years to host a single event of Relay For Life at the Carroll County Civic Center on Friday, July 7. The July 7 event was rescheduled from June 23, when Tropical Storm Cindy dumped rains on Tennessee.

Relay For Life started in Carroll County on May 21, 1997 at the McKenzie City Park. There was only one event in the county with teams throughout the county participating. Ramona Washburn of McKenzie was the first chairwoman. The late Ross Martin was the first honorary co-chairman. The first event raised $30,000.

The 2017 event raised $85,249.77.

Johnny Beth Nolen received the Volunteer of the Year award. An end of year closing party will be held with the teams after August 31 to celebrate the success of Relay this year. Additional awards will be given then for most money raised, best team spirit, etc.

This year's honorary co-chairs represented the county: Ann Drewry, McKenzie; Judy Gooch, Yuma; Mary Lou Hicks, Cedar Grove; Glendon Rich, Huntingdon; Darrell Ross, McKenzie; and Brenda Spencer, Bruceton. Each was seated on stage to receive special recognition.

This Friday, Survivor Registration and Reception was 5 - 6:30 p.m.

McKenzie Celebrates Independence with Freedom Festival

BY BRAD SAM

brad@mckenziebanner.com

McKENZIE (July 4) — Patriots gathered Tuesday to celebrate America's independence with events throughout the day in McKenzie.

First, the city held a children's parade in the morning on Broadway downtown, the first such event in McKenzie for the Fourth. Over two dozen kids (with some adult supervision) were decked out in red, white and blue as they walked or rode bikes or motorized vehicles. Barksdale Lawn Service drove a float in the parade, featuring a singing Lady Liberty (Sarah Edwards).

In the early evening, festivities began at the recreational park as vendors opened their booths to sell food, drinks and other items.

Cub Scouts Jack Nunn and Andrew Johnson of McKenzie

Pack 78 presented the colors, and Mayor Jill Holland welcomed everyone to the event.

Rev. LaTricia Trull, pastor at McKenzie First United Methodist Church, delivered a prayer, and Melissa Herris gave a lofty, inspiring performance of the National Anthem.

Mayor Holland then announced the winners of the Morning Glory Garden Club's Yard of the Month and Most Patriotic Business Window. Ann and Jerry Dreyer had the winning yard and Supry Drugs was the winning business window.

Then, the King Beez performed as the sun began to set.

With a large storm system en route to the area, officials made the call to begin the fireworks display earlier than planned. Taps was played, and the scouts retired the colors before members of the McKenzie Fire Department initiated a beautiful fireworks display.

Last Annual Vol State Road Race Returns Thursday

BY BRAD SAM

brad@mckenziebanner.com

For most, the middle of July is a time when the daily trip to the mailbox is more than enough time under the hot, summer sun, but, for a bravely deranged few, it's the perfect time to hit the open road for 314 miles of unforgiving Tennessee terrain in the Last Annual Vol State Road Race.

The 500-kilometer ultramarathon begins in the early hours of Thursday, July 13 in Dorena Landing, Missouri, and ends in Castle Rock, Georgia, winding through Tennessee by highway and country road. Over 30-plus years, the course has undergone several changes, and one reroute enacted several years ago brings the runners through downtown McKenzie, 56 miles into the journey.

Runners compete in two classes, crewed and uncrewed, or "screwed." Crewed runners have a team that provides aid during the race, and the rest are at the mercy of the road and anyone they meet along the way.

Last year, a small group of race enthusiasts established an aid station at the McKenzie farmers market and gathered resources from volunteers and local organizations.

Gary "Laz" Cantrell, the creator of the race, told The Banner last year, "McKenzie is a star in this race. People love coming through this beautiful little town."

In his usual announcement, Laz said, "The pre-race favorite is Andrew Snope of Los Angeles, California. He is expected to face stiff challenges from Greg South-east of Quincy, Massachusetts, and Matt Collins of New York City. Greg Myers, of El Dorado, Kansas, is the dark horse in the field.

"The women's co-favorites are Kathy Youngren of Owens Crossroads, Alabama, and Jennifer Caravallo of Pompano Beach, Florida, although Francesca Muccini out of Nashville is expected to make some noise on her home turf (or maybe we should say asphalt)."

The core members from McKenzie's group of "road angels" (as runners lovingly refer to such volunteers) are preparing to support them again and hope to improve on last year's much-appreciated efforts, having gained tons of input from both participants and organizers.

Last year, the first runner passed through McKenzie at 4:50 p.m. Thursday. The rest trickled through over the hours that followed, peaking during the first half of Friday.

Aid station organizers have most of the needed supplies accounted for, but welcome others to join in their effort. Volunteers are invited to bring the following items: comfortable lawn chairs, phone chargers, Vaseline, salt, watermelon and any appropriate food. Those bringing hot or cold food will need to also provide a way to keep the items at an appropriate temperature. Outlets will be available, but limited.

McKenzie Council Hears Long-Term Concerns About Sewer System

McKENZIE (June 29) — The city council met Thursday afternoon in a special called meeting to hold a public hearing and a second and final reading on the budget for the next fiscal year. Councilpersons also addressed other issues, including the long-term concerns about the city's sewer system during the meeting.

The council heard a presentation by Jim Hilborn, P.E., of GRW Engineering & Architects and Frank Tate, Executive Director of the McKenzie Industrial Board.

SEWER SYSTEM CONCERNS

Hilborn explained the history and current status of the city's wastewater system, outlining the upgrades, rehabilitation, and tests that have been conducted in the past ten years and what was still left to be done. He explained that the remaining repairs would be roughly $2-2.5 million, and offered the suggestion to apply for a Rural Development loan.

Tate spoke about the limitations of the current system being a hindrance to attracting new industry, particularly large industries that would employ a substantial number of workers. He was hopeful, though, that if the city has a plan to resolve the issues, even several years down the road, he can begin to secure some businesses with long-term plans.

Hilborn and Tate strongly urged the council to move forward by allowing them to submit a Rural Development application.

Mayor Holland said that it will appear on the July 2017 agenda.

The city has addressed the issue over a 10-year period, making $500,000 repairs to the system on an annual or bi-annual basis to correct the stormwater infiltration into the system. The state of Tennessee Department of Conservation and Environment placed the city on a moratorium, restricting any large users of water and sewer. That occurred during the previous city administration, which, along with the current administration, worked to incrementally correct the situation. Insituform was contracted to install inner liners in the sewer system lines. In doing so, the company made cuts in the streets, such as the pavement patches along South Main Street. Last year, the city approved a major renovation to the wastewater plant on Clark Street in McKenzie.

In March 2016, the city board approved Moore Construction Company as the contractor for that phase of the sewer rehabilitation project. The Clarksville company has been the contractor on each of the other Community Development Block Grant sewer rehabilitation projects. Water rates were increased slightly to help pay for the sewer system plant rehabilitation.

owned by Richard and Carolyn Brooks at 8225 Highway 70 and forced a large spruce tree onto the roof of a home belonging to Mrs. A. P. Fry, 8095 Highway 70.

Following the storm, TDOT crews worked feverishly for approximately two hours to clear tree limbs and debris from a closed section of Highway 70.

At the Brooks residence, a friend said the owners were electing to stay inside the home and protect their belongings until additional law or military personnel arrived to secure the couple's property.

Brooks is owner / operator of Home Furnishing of Cedarhurst located a short distance from his residence. The business received slight storm damage.

Utilizing a drone to aerially survey and video storm damage to the Brook's home, barn and equipment shelter, WBBJ-TV 7 meteorologist Tom Meiners said the storm's powerful winds were responsible for substantial structural damage in the area.

He said, "The damage is definitely the result of a significant wind event. The storm created a definable path through the woods before crossing Highway 70 and impacting homes. We are awaiting verification from the National Weather Service as to the nature of the wind event."

Examining the heavily-damaged electrical meter box clinging to the Brook residence, Milan Public Utility District electrician Jim Sutcliffe said, "I work a whole lot of storms, and I see a lot of damage caused by straight line winds. However, gauging by the numerous angles that trees fell in the visible path of the storm, I would think that some possible circular wind motion was at play here. Whatever it was, the storm was moving fast and did a sizeable amount of damage while it was here."

Taking a momentary break from chain-sawing sections of a spruce tree sprawled on top of his grandmother's home, Robert Tart said, "My grandfather, the late Arville Fry, built this home back in 1937. My family and I had just replaced the roof not long ago."

He added, "You know, my grandmother always said that spruce trees should never be planted near a house. She was right."

Robert's brother, Randy Mc-

Minn of Jackson, added, "The storm that came through here uprooted some big oak trees, too. That tells you how strong the winds were. I'm just thankful that we can fix the damage and that no one was hurt inside the home. We were lucky with this one. I wouldn't be surprised by the trees being bent in so many directions that it was a tornado."

Huntingdon Sonic Drive-In owner Josh Grant said the damage sustained to his store's awning was probably due to torrential rains.

He said, "I was in Lexington when the storm hit, but my employees said the volume of rain it contained was unbelievable. I would not doubt that the partial collapse of the awning was due to the weight of rain collecting on the roof of the building."

Grant added, "I wish our insurance adjuster can make it out today so we can start replacing the damaged section of awning, but I know that is highly-unlikely due to all the damaged homes in our area. They have to take care of those issues first, and I truly understand. We are okay."

He concluded, "I am thankful that nothing worse happened. We are open and serving the public."

The Readers Speak ...

For the past 40 years I have been involved in planning public events for groups, churches, and communities. During that time anything that could go wrong has gone wrong.

Everyone in northwest Tennessee has heard of the fireworks fiasco during a 4th of July fireworks event at Paris Landing State Park several years ago. I didn't "hear" of it; I lived it. My chorus was slap dab in the middle of those fireworks that shot through the crowd and bounced off of vehicles.

Which brings me to McKenzie's most recent 4th of July celebration. The fireworks were set off earlier than advertised because radar indicated there was rain approaching. Many people missed seeing the fireworks because of that decision.

If you were one of those who missed out, how did you handle it? Did you rant, rave, and cuss, calling the organizers all sorts of names?

When your child started crying because they missed the fireworks, how did you handle the situation? Did you rant, rave, cuss, and call the organizers all sorts of names? In other words, did you act just like your child? Or did you use the opportunity to empathize with your child's disappointment and then use it as a teaching opportunity to demonstrate to them how to handle disappointment? You might have said, "I know you're disappointed. I don't blame you because I am, too. But sometimes things don't go the way they were planned, and we don't always get what we hoped for. Missing fireworks was a disappointing thing, but you and I are alive and well and here together; I'm happy about that."

We all have moments when we need to stop and take a breath and consider what is important. While many were together celebrating the 4th, my three-year old great-nephew was being diagnosed with leukemia and a sweet friend of mine lost her life while hiking at Cummins Falls State Park. Those things are worth being upset about. But missing out on fireworks? It's really not that big of a deal.

Pet owners must complete a form at Carroll County Humane Society, pay the $30, and be ready to schedule the procedure at the time of purchase. The participating clinic for this program is Huntingdon Animal Clinic.

Dogs need to be at least twelve weeks old, weigh at least two pounds and have had all of their puppy shots or adult shots to participate. This is for the safety of your pets. Vouchers cover only the cost of the surgery. Vaccinations, medications, dewormer, etc. are the responsibility of the pet owner.

The animal will need to be dropped off by 8 a.m. and picked up between 3:30-5 p.m. on the scheduled day of surgery at Huntingdon Animal Clinic.

Vouchers are non-transferable and non-refundable unless you get in touch with CCHS at least 24 hours prior to your appointment. They are usually able to fill in vacant slots or reschedule if given the time to do so.

Additionally, CCHS does still have grant funding for low-cost cat spay and neuter surgeries. Those vouchers are also $30, available at Carroll County Humane Society to residents of any county. The participating clinic for those vouchers is Paris Veterinary Clinic.

If dog vouchers are still available after Friday, an update will appear on the CCHS Facebook page.

HUNKER DOWN WITH KES

Blest Be The Tie That Binds

Miss Anita Hale just always was. I don't remember "meeting" her. No one said, "There's this nice lady living over on Forrest Avenue." I don't remember the first time I went home with Ricky. It was before we started to elementary school.

Miss Anita had a lot going for her right off the bat. She had that good laugh. And she knew how to share it. She could really cook. That counts for more than you know when you go to picking whose house you need to be playing at come super time! She liked little boys...she raised Gene, Ricky and Randy, plus me and the Mabry boys next door and anyone else her sons drug home. And I especially liked that she was always telling me what a special lady my Mother was.

They had a TV. And this was like, 1955. I took to spending the night over there so I could wake up with Captain Kangaroo. She would fix breakfast, let us take it into the living room and eat on the floor right in front of the set. I'm telling you, I felt like one of those Egyptian pharaohs, she was waiting on us so.

Mr. Arvie Hale wasn't so accommodating on Saturday nights. If me or Rick made a little noise during Gunsmoke he'd lay that Lucky Strike down and threaten us with bodily harm if we didn't hush.

Ricky was the middle son. Just like me. We allowed that it was a tough position. One parent doted on the oldest and both "took care" of the youngest. The middle child was just naturally overlooked and under appreciated. We'd complain to Miss Anita. She'd throw her head back and through the laughter proclaim, "Don't neither one of you look like you're suffering too much!"

Miss Anita was our CNN anchor lady. She knew everything about everybody in town. She was the first to know who got hired out at the Dairy Bar. Who was visiting their kinfolks in Memphis. Who'd run off with the International Harvester tractor salesman from Paducah. What was playing next week at the Park Theatre. Who was thinking about getting married and who wished they weren't!

I think it all stemmed from her job at Mr. James Williams' Ben Franklin Store. Listen, there wasn't a soul in town that didn't filter through that five and ten cent building looking for some sewing material, writing paper or Brach's candy in a week's time. It became customary to "visit" with Miss Anita as you perused the aisles. She didn't take notes mind you, but she kept track nevertheless. And don't let that friendliness or her diminutive size fool you. She could be tough as whit leather if the occasion demanded. She's set me and Ricky straight any number of times. And when Mr. Arvie came home a little on the gruff side, I've seen him get the same treatment!

That was a by product of her upbringing down in Yuma, Tennessee, in the 1920's. The town consisted mostly of cotton gins and sawmills. It wasn't a time or place for the faint of heart.

Yuma is where Miss Anita's dad kept the machine that made fake one hundred dollar bills. The whole community swore it would turn out perfect looking "Franklins" just as fast as you could "ink it" and crank the handle.

Dwayne Melton, a cousin, was rumored to have inherited the lucrative contraption. I know he didn't have much when he moved up from Clarksburg...and bought that big house and barn and new pick-up and cattle and all those show horses. I dated his daughter for years hoping to find some cash floating around in the basement.

Needless to say, Ricky and I never got a cent out of that machine. But he did help make those school years tolerable. We played ball together, had pillow fights, explored the world via the Park Theatre, smoked our first cigarette in that ditch across from his house and rode his Moped all over town. He, and his family, are as entwined in my formative years as anyone on earth.

Maybe that's why I wound myself by that familiar white house on Forrest Avenue just a couple of years back. Mother had passed away and I was home taking care of a few things. It just seemed natural to check in. It dawned on me about the time I knocked that Miss Anita might not recognize a guy showing up out of nowhere from her distant past... "Kesley Colbert," she laughed before I could say a word, her hug like I remembered, "I'm so sorry to hear about your Mother. Ophelia was such a dear person."

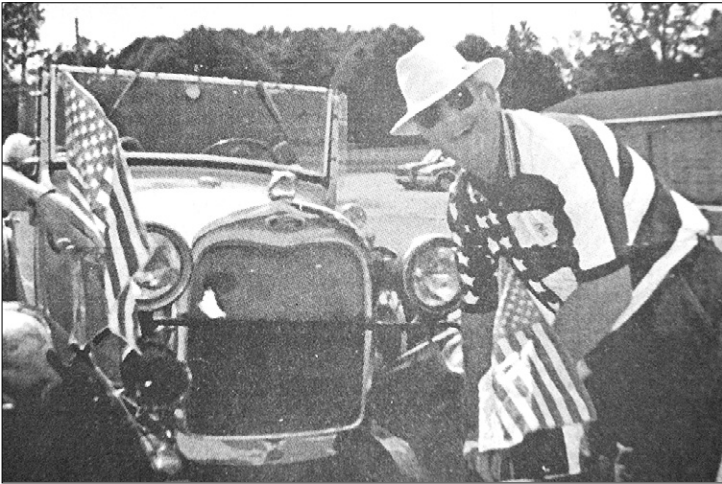

Anita Hale celebrates her one hundredth birthday this week. She's one of the last remnants of some shinning times.

I hope she lives forever.

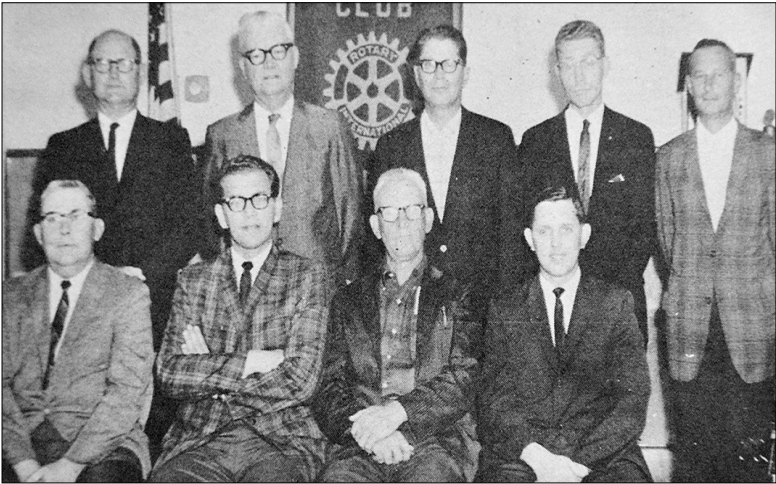

Respectfully,
Kes

MCKENZIE (June 30) — McKenzie Memorial Library's Summer Reading Program closed Friday with a presentation by Super Science TN's Mr. Rich, a perennial favorite for local readers.

This year, the theme of Mr. Rich's program was "Build a Better World." As always, the Super Scientist wowed the kids and grown-ups alike with his feats that seem like magic until he explains the science behind each trick.

He used a Tesla coil to demonstrate how electricity flows, giving brave volunteers a small shock through various conduits.

He created a comet, or "dirty snowball," before their eyes using dirt, ammonia, water, syrup and dry ice.

He made water "disappear" from a cup using the powder typically used in disposable diapers, which he explained is also what astronauts use to go to the bathroom in space.

Finally, he had all of the kids participate in constructing a maze, and they all took turns crawling through.

The young readers thanked Mr. Rich for coming, and they were given various prizes by the library as they left.

Summer Reading may be over for the year, but readers young and old can read on at McKenzie Memorial Library, open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, excluding Wednesday.

BY BRAD SAM

brad@mckenziebanner.com

The McKenzie High School golf team hosts its Par 3 Extravaganza at Carroll Lake Golf Course on Saturday, July 15.

According to Coach Larry Joe Smith, this fun, family-oriented event is a major fundraiser for the team, which is vital to success in a non-revenue sport that must generate its own resources.

Golfers will tee off at 4 p.m., with registration starting at 3 p.m. The event is a 3-person scramble; each of the 18 holes has been made a Par 3. Entry is $35 per person.

Every participant will receive a prize. The player winning “closest to the pin” on each hole will receive a free round of golf.

Coach Smith said, “The community support has been awesome. Now we just need plenty of players and teams to make this a great event.”

To secure a spot in the scramble, call Coach Smith at 731-415-7371 or Carroll Lake Golf Club at 731-352-2998.

game knowledge, position technique, reaction speed and overall stamina on the first day of TSSAA-authorized high school football practice.

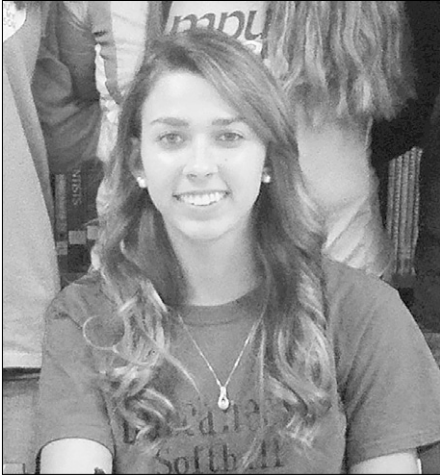

Donning shorts, tee-shirts and helmets, Rebel players sweated profusely as they worked under the watchful gaze of head coach Wade Comer, offensive and defensive line coach Randy Thomas, linebackers coach Kelly Spivey and receivers / defensive backs coach Chris Wall.

Observing Rebel quarterback Zach Jarrett throw long passes from a kneeling position, Comer said, “I’m glad the TSSAA Dead Period is behind us. The coaches, players and I are ready to get

TENNESSEE SCHOLASTIC CLAY TARGET PROGRAM STATE CHAMPIONSHIPS

McKenzie (Carroll County), Bethel Teams Earn Top Marks

COURTESY NATE WEST

Tennessee Wildlife Federation Communication Director

NASHVILLE (July 5) — Despite the remnants of Hurricane Cindy raining on competitors for two days, More than 1,300 youth athletes from middle school to college persisted through five full days of co-ed competition in three shotgun shooting sports disciplines: trap, skeet and sporting clays in the 2017 Tennessee Scholastic Clay Target Program State Championships on June 20-24 in Nashville.

Individuals and teams from all corners of the state competed for titles in nearly 70 categories.

At tournament's end, McKenzie Shooting Sports, comprised of shooters throughout Carroll County, earned first place in Sporting Clays-Rookie Team; Trap-Rookie Team; Combined Highest Overall-Rookie Team and second place in Skeet-Rookie Team.

In collegiate competition, Bethel University earned first place in Skeet, Sporting Clays and Trap.

Henry County No Fly Zone earned first place in Skeet-Varsity Team, first in Combined Highest Overall-Intermediate Team; third in Skeet-Intermediate Advanced Team, and third place in Trap-Intermediate Advanced Team.

“Every year, we're impressed with the commitment of our student athletes—and the coaches and parents who support them. But this year hit a new high,” said Andrew Percy, Tennessee Scholastic Clay Target Program Manager. “The remnants of Hurricane Cindy dumped rain on competitors

Thursday and Friday but they continued to shoot, unfazed, through it all.”

The governing body of the sport in Tennessee is the Tennessee Scholastic Clay Target Program, an initiative of Tennessee Wildlife Federation, one of the largest and oldest nonprofits dedicated to the conservation of Tennessee's wildlife and natural resources. Tennessee Scholastic Clay Target Program introduces youth to the shooting sports and recruits them into an outdoor lifestyle.

“Our winners embody discipline and we're excited to see many move on to Nationals the week of July 10,” said Percy. “But all of our competitors represent the future of outdoor enthusiasts in Tennessee and, by extension, the future of our state's wildlife.”

Hunters and anglers are the main source of funding wildlife conservation in Tennessee and are leading advocates for policies that promote good stewardship of our natural resources. But for every ten sportsmen today, only seven are growing up to take their place.

Upon stopping the vehicle, the officer smelled a faint odor of alcohol emanating from the vehicle. Upon having knowledge that the vehicle driver, identified as James M. After failing to properly perform sobriety testing, Entrekin was arrested for DUI and transported to McKenzie Hospital Emergency Room for blood testing prior to being transported to Carroll County Jail and booked for the listed offenses. Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
