Lisa Norris to Participate in Supreme Court Summer Institute

Lisa Norris, Ph.D. will participate in the 2021 U.S. Supreme Court Summer Institute for Teachers. She is one of 60 educators across the U.S. who was chosen to participate.

Dr. Norris is the teacher of Criminal Justice at the Carroll County Technical Center in Huntingdon. She is a graduate of McKenzie High School, and earned a master's degree from Bethel and a doctorate from Walden University. She previously taught Criminal Justice, Orientation, and Critical Thinking at Bethel University. Norris has worked as a sheriff's deputy and was the co-founder of Carroll Academy. She has also trained at the UT-Knoxville with the Forensic Anthropology Center and is also certified as a security guard.

COVID-19 pandemic forced this year's event to be virtual. The online program begins June 17 and ends June 23 and provides information about how justices are nominated, how cases are selected to be heard, plus information on prior court cases and participation in mock cases.

The program is an intense study of the Supreme Court and how it works. The workshops provide interactive strategies to teach local students lessons about the Supreme Court and its cases. Norris will learn how to use online and video media to research and teach about the Supreme Court.

Norris is a teacher who likes for her students to have both book knowledge and first-hand knowledge of the criminal justice system. She teaches Street Law - A Course in Practical Law. She teaches pre-law and Criminal Justice III. She takes her students on field trips to the county jail, General Sessions Court, the 911 emergency call center, and the firing range with sheriff's deputies.

Dennis Stokes, principal of CCTC, wrote a letter of support for Norris to be selected.

Celebrating McKenzie's oldest business and historical record

John H. Moseley

Moseley Seed and Produce

For 65 years, Moseley Seed and Produce was a fixture in McKenzie. The business was synonymous with John H. Moseley, but the story of the feed store begins with his father, George Leonard Moseley (1887-1962). About 1920, Leonard with his brother-in-law, Robert Phillips, opened a country store west of Gleason at the Hill Top community. In 1925, they sold the business. Leonard and his wife, Ella Lee (1893-1983), moved the family to McKenzie. He began farming on rented land and worked Saturdays for The Farmers' Store, a grocery, seed and feed store in McKenzie. Two years later, he managed the McKenzie location of the Bridges Produce Company on Cedar Street. The group was headquartered out of Henderson, Tennessee. As the Great Depression set in, the company was bankrupt, and the McKenzie branch was given to Leonard as long as he could keep it running. The Moseley Produce Company was then established and fought hard to survive. Leonard bought and sold live poultry, eggs, hides, wild game, vegetables, feed and fruit. According to family records, "the business survived a serious blow when a bank holiday was declared by President Roosevelt and the McKenzie Bank did not reopen. He lost all but the money he kept out of the day's deposit to make the change." Leonard's second son,

John, was familiar with the family business as he worked for his father while he was in high school. He was expected to work after school and on non-school days. "Daddy knew when the teachers had meetings on Fridays, he'd holler bright and early to get up and go," John recalled of his father. Before graduating high school, John played high school football for the Yellow Jackets, McKenzie's mascot before becoming the Rebels. His work for Leonard consisted of running a route to Gleason and the Tumbling Creek community. In John's senior year of high school, he was drafted by the United States Army. His induction was delayed for two months so he could finish high school. After graduation, he was sent to Camp Wheeler, Georgia for basic training and then shipped to the European Theatre to join the Third Infantry Division. He saw action on the bloody beach at Anzio as Allied forces invaded Italy in September 1943. From Italy, they took part in an amphibious assault on the French coast. On Christmas Eve, 1944, John was nearly killed following a mortar assault. "Both my legs were broken and I had 144 holes in my body," John said of the shrapnel attack. Sent to recuperate in England, a doctor noticed how slowly he was healing and decided to send him back stateside. The war was over several months before he was allowed to return home. After returning home, John wasn't too sure of what he wanted to do. He went to Bethel College for a year and then worked in Memphis before returning to McKenzie. In 1948, John decided to buy the produce business. Leonard had sold the business to Cleo Beasley during the war and John bought it back. "One of my dad's requests was that as long as he lived he wanted to see a Moseley produce company in McKenzie," said John.

Later, John purchased Paul Carroll's shares of McKenzie Seed Company and went into partnership with Billy Vawter, until Vawter decided he wanted to do something else. John became the sole owner of the seed company. During this time, John operated a poultry business on Hamilton Street which consisted of chicken houses and a processing plant. In the early 1950s, he moved his produce and seed business to the old terminal building downtown along the old rail line. He later moved the mill to what's now Forrest Avenue. In 1971, he sold his interest to W.R. Grace and Company but continued to work for the firm. Ten years later, he bought back the business. John partnered with Ben Surber for many years in a hog farming operation. It started with a purchase of 1000 hogs from Brown Aden. After 30 days of feeding, the hogs were sold with the money reinvested in more pigs and a leased location to raise them. "Ben and I made some good money together," said John. "I told him I'd rather have his luck than be rich." In 1996, John announced his retirement and the sale of the feed mill to Gary Meek.

Over the years, John found time to take part in various civic activities. Including 17 years on the McKenzie City Council, 18 years on the McKenzie Special School District Board of Education and a stint on the city's Water Commission. "I don't believe the saying that you can't hold public office and be in business," said John. "I don't think I ever lost a customer, you just have to treat everyone right and be fair." John died in September, 1998 and was buried at Mount Olivet Cemetery. His wife, Melba, was laid to rest next to him in January, 2007.

HUNKER DOWN WITH KES

A Blessing NOT In Disguise

There are tremendous advantages to growing up in a small town. For one thing, it doesn't take long to get from one end of it to the other. Now, you might not think that a big deal.... But if you had been playing baseball in Billy Gwaltney's side yard all afternoon and completely lost track of time and realized when you stood up after tagging out Terry Kennon on a bang-bang play at second that all of a sudden the sun had sunk behind the abandoned tower at Mr. Blumenthal's old Egg Plant and you were mandated to be home for supper..... I flashed by the Methodist Parsonage racing towards W. Church Avenue, took a left on Stonewall between the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches and hightailed it the three-quarters of a mile to the house! I was out of breath, I'd run out of one tennis shoe in front of Jeanne Caldwell's big home, the sweat I'd worked up was melting the dirt rings around my neck into tiny rivulets trickling across my Adam's apple, Terry yelling that I completely missed the tag was still ringing in my ears.....but I had my glove, my shirt wasn't torn but a little bit and I'd made it before Grace was said. Barely. Dad didn't play around about mealtime. As Mom blessed the food, I silently thanked a benevolent and merciful God that we hadn't been playing in Eddie Carden's front yard, which was all the way out Highway 22 past the intersection!

Getting into town on Saturday mornings was a snap. We'd start out walking, but usually the first car "going our way" would stop. Mr. Roy Manley was our favorite ride. He'd slow his pickup to a crawl and motion us into the back. It would be me and David Mark, Jimmy and Kong King, Brenda Ellis, sometimes Aunt Jessie. We'd climb over the side or hop on the tailgate, talking and waving at folks and laughing all the way up to the square. Mother didn't have to tell us not to get into a car with a stranger—we didn't have any strangers! I'm telling you, we could solve half the problems in America today, if we'd just throw the combatants into the back of Mr. Roy's truck and ride'em around a small town for a bit. I will tell you another big advantage to small town living. Everybody knew who was kin to whom! When I decided in junior high I liked Charlotte Melton, I had a serious talk with Ricky Hale. I wanted him to quietly persuade his cousin Pam Collins to find out—completely off the record—if their cousin Charlotte would be amenable to going out with me. Pam "found" me outside my locker with fifteen of my closest friends standing around, "Kesley, let me tell you something, you stay away from our cousin. She is not going out with you today, tomorrow or forever! Have you got rocks in your head! If you think you've got one chance in a whirlwind with her, your craz—" You know, some advantages don't always work the way you want them to.... There were other situations where this "advantage thing" might be in the eye of the beholder. We'd be out at Kenny Butler's house hanging on his fence. We might have been a tad loud. And we might have accidentally leaned a bit hard on that old fence. Mr. Butler might have warned us a time or two to pay more attention to both. All of a sudden Mr. Butler had Kenny by the arm, whipping the daylight out of him! Then he grabbed Buddy and did the same. And Wiley. I was fourth in line. And believe me, Mr. Butler still had plenty of gas in the tank! You think anyone ran home and "told" on Mr. Butler. Heaven forbid! If Daddy had gotten wind of it, he would have whipped me till the band quit playing; then taken me out to the Butler's house so I could apologize in person and offer to straighten the fence. Some unenlightened folks today might be appalled by that action. They don't have a clue. It was one of the BIGGEST advantages of growing up in a small place. We got "looked-after" by the most wonderful, caring, sincere people on earth. I understood it when it was taking place. I appreciate it "to the moon and back" as the years roll on. Our small town upbringing is as relevant to us as it is everlasting! Emily Young Archer's husband died earlier this year. Jerry didn't grow up with us but he was a good guy. I played golf with him on occasion. When I heard the news my heart stopped....for Emily. We were not necessarily best buds growing up. We never dated. But we were friends. And it was a small town. And miles and time and circumstance will never over-ride that....

Respectfully,
Kes

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Carroll County Sheriff's Reports

Attempted Murder, Arson — Jason Forsythe, 49, of 4650 McLemoresville Road, Huntingdon, was arrested on charges of attempted first-degree murder, aggravated arson, and criminal attempt following the investigation into an April 19 fire near Huntingdon.

According to the report by Deputy Michael Mulligan, he responded to 6185 Old Stage Road at around 7:00 a.m. on April 19 after receiving a call about an individual shooting at a barn and lighting a car on fire. Upon arrival, Mulligan found that a shed that had been converted into living quarters was fully engulfed in flames. Mulligan observed Forsythe looking out of the window of an RV, and Forsythe told the deputy that he did not know what started the fire. Having knowledge of an outstanding warrant against Forsythe, Mulligan placed him under arrest. Another deputy observed Ramona Hendon, who lived at that address, standing across the street in a distressed state, and she told the deputy that she was awakened by a loud boom, heard Forsythe say that she was going to die, and realized that her residence was on fire. She said she managed to escape the structure and called 911. The Tennessee Bureau of Investigation (TBI) and local fire marshal were contacted to assist with the investigation, and it was found that video surveillance from a neighboring residence supported Hendon's account. Forsythe was then charged by TBI Agent Bryant Allen, and as of press time, Forsythe was being held at the Carroll County Jail on a $250,000 bond.

Dog at Large — Devin Hunt, 31, of Atwood was cited for dog at large by Deputy Chance Townes on April 17 after a neighbor had filed complaints and Hunt had been warned several times by deputies regarding his dog(s).

Shoplifting — Deputy Chance Townes filed a citation for shoplifting against Michael Edward Newbill Jr., 45, of Trezevant on March 18 after Newbill allegedly ripped a flashlight valued at $14.05 out of its packaging and then put the flashlight in his pocket.

Drug, License Violations — Tanner Blake Hedge, 23, of Camden was cited for simple possession of marijuana and driving while revoked during an April 22 traffic stop on Highway 114.

Deputy Cody Walker reported that he pulled over a vehicle driven by Hedge because of a tag light being out. After Walker detected the odor of marijuana and Hedge admitted that he had a "roach" in the middle console, the deputy conducted a search of the vehicle and found approximately 23.2 grams of a substance believed to be marijuana. A computer check showed that Hedge's license was revoked.

Aggravated Burglary

— Charles Xavier Hill, 27, of 3515 Green Allen Springs Road, Huntingdon, was recently arrested for aggravated burglary and cited for simple possession of marijuana and theft of property under $1,000.

Deputy Chance Townes reported that he went to a residence on St. Paul Church Road on April 21 and spoke a female resident, who said that when she and her family recently returned home after being away for about a month, it appeared that someone had been in the residence and several items and $24 in cash were found to be missing. She also said that she suspected Hill was responsible. Townes returned to that address a couple of days later after receiving a call that Hill was on the property. While speaking with Hill, Townes detected the odor of marijuana, and when asked about it, Hill pulled a bag containing about 27 grams of marijuana out of his pants pocket. Hill also admitted that he had broken into the residence and had taken items and money because he was hungry.

Protection Order Violation — Nicholas Allen Melton, 32, of Huntingdon was charged with violation of an order of protection by Deputy Ryan Hamilton on April 19 when the deputy found Melton inside a residence on Old Stage Road in violation of a court order.

WANT BUG-FREE OUTDOOR LIVING? TRY THESE PLANTS

Outdoor living spaces have become increasingly popular among homeowners in recent years, and that popularity grew even more over the last year. As social distancing guidelines issued in response to the COVID-19 pandemic encouraged people to stay home as much as possible, a desire for accessible, enjoyable outdoor spaces grew. A 2020 study of Google trends data from the home decor retailer Living Spaces found that searches for items such as patio daybeds and small-space outdoor furniture grew by more than 200 percent between the early part of 2020 and the middle of the year.

If outdoor living spaces are in demand, so, too, are ways to make those spaces as comfortable as possible. There's much homeowners can do to make the most of their outdoor spaces, but they might feel helpless against some unwanted, often relentless guests: insects. Insects can turn relaxing days on the patio into wars of attrition with hungry bugs like mosquitoes. Thankfully, there are ways to fight back against insects while simultaneously adding a little aesthetic appeal to the backyard. The Farmer's Almanac notes that planting these insect-repelling plants around the patio or backyard can help homeowners successfully repel unwanted insects, including mosquitoes.

- LAVENDER: Lavender is a fragrant plant that adds a pop of purple and has been known to
- repel mosquitoes, fleas, flies, and moths.
- BASIL: Basil can provide the best of both worlds, as it's been found to repel flies and moths and also makes for a tasty addition to pasta sauces and other dishes.
- THYME: Also a valuable ingredient to keep in the kitchen, thyme can help keep hungry mosquitoes at bay.
- MINT: The Farmer's Almanac warns that it's easy to overplant mint, so homeowners should only plant with care and make a concerted effort to prevent overgrowth. Also great in the kitchen, mint has long been considered an effective mosquito repellent.
- ALLIUMS: Like lavender, alliums can add a burst of purple to your patio. And though they aren't believed to repel mosquitoes, alliums have been found to be helpful against cabbage worms, aphids, carrot flies, and slugs.
- CHRYSANTHEMUMS: If ants are drawing homeowners' ire, chrysanthemums may do the trick. These eye-catching flowers also are believed to repel fleas and roaches, among other insects.
- MARIGOLDS: The scent of this awe-inspiring plant is known to repel mosquitoes and other pests. Marigolds also attract insects like ladybugs that are known to consume aphids, which are minute bugs that reproduce rapidly and feed by sucking sap from plants.
